J. L. FORD.

Died in His Coffin

Yes, there was a poor fellow in Chicago, a short time ago, who, waking up out of a trance, found himself laid out all ready for burial, and sitting bolt upright in his coffin, gave a cry of astonishment and expired. Poor fellow! They say he discovered that he had on one of those Cheap John shoddy suits, which his friends thought would be good enough to lay him out in, thinking he would never know the difference.

NO WONDER HE DIED!

Now had he only found himself arrayed in one of those nobby tailor-fitting suits sold by

You Don't Need

To go to some city far off to invest for profit in real estate. You can't help making money faster, surer and more of it on same amount invested right here at home, provided you invest under the advice of those skilled in the art. Yours very truly,

GEO. L. & SARAH H. CARRINGTON.

Such Investments

May be found at our office every day in the week. Take, for instance, any one of those five lots on South Main street. They are the only lots north of Wheeler street on South Main that are purchasable on the east side of Main. We offer them at 20 per cent less than they are worth today. Yours very truly,

GEO. L. & SARAH H. CARRINGTON.

That Block

Surrounded by South Main, Carrington, Wheeler and Oak streets embraces three of the charming South Main street lots, two on Carrington, two on Wheeler and three on Oak. Every one of these lots are laid out on "the Carrington plan," that is, with liberal alleys in rear of every one. We will sell one or all of these lots at our present price and GUARANTEE that the buyer can sell them within five years at fifty per cent. advance.

POISON FOR A BABE.

Little Roy Beckard of Evansville, Empties a Bottle.

ITS CONTENTS PROVE DEADLY

Antidotes Promptly Applied and it is Not Believed That the Child Can Recover. The Poison Left on a Shelf within Reach of the Little One.

EVANSVILLE, May 23.—[Special.]—Two-year old Roy Beckard was found clutching a bottle of poison yesterday afternoon. His mother saw that the little fellow's face was blanched, and a glance at the bottle that the baby had in his hands, caused her to turn pale, too. The little fellow had evidently swallowed a large portion of the contents. Dr. Stair was summoned and promptly administered antidotes. It is now believed the child will live.

The bottle was on a pantry shelf, supposedly high enough to be out of the baby's reach.

LEO'S ADVICE.

The Pope's Encyclical on Labor Given to

ROME, May 23.—The full text of the pope's encyclical has appeared. In his exordium the pope dilates upon the task which he has set himself in defining for the guidance of the church its position toward the existing social questions. His holiness refers to the pressing importance of the matter and the difficulty in dealing with it, arising from its ever-changing character, owing to the numerous concurrent factors requiring consideration, yet, he says, a solution can be obtained by applying the eternal principles on which the teachings of the church are always based. Now as ever men's relations toward each other as individuals or parts of society must have the sanction of the old authority. The divine law (Deuteronomy vi. 21) rejects the socialist solution of the social problem, which would abolish private property, substituting a collective and common ownership. Proceeding to consider the relations of the state to the individual the pope says:

"To think that the authority of the state ought arbitrarily to invade family intimacy is a great and perilous error. Undoubtedly it can interfere when the condition of the family is too disastrous, but only to alleviate it and to safeguard the rights and interests of public power, without violating the rights of individuals. To go beyond these limits would violate the nature of things. The state should not deprive the family of its natural functions, the rights of the state of the capitalist and of the proletariat. We affirm unhesitatingly that human efforts are impotent without the concurrence of the church."

A long demonstration follows recalling all that the church has done to better the lot of the proletariat. The pope says: "A capital error is to believe that the rich and the proletariat are condemned by nature to battle and duel without end. The one has need of the other, capital is powerless without work and workmen are powerless without capital. The proletariat cannot and ought not to injure either capital or master. But in order to obtain respect for their rights they must abstain from violence. They ought not to have recourse to sedition nor to listen to the chimerical promises of agitators."

"On the other hand masters ought to respect the individuality and dignity of the man and Christian in workmen and not abuse them to draw profits from the misery of the poor. But besides the religious means it is necessary that there should be a cooperation of human means. The state ought to favor the prosperity of society as much as of individuals. It ought to watch over the purity, morals and interior order of families; the safe-keeping of religion, justice and moderation, and the equal division of the public charges, all of which contribute largely to the amelioration of the condition of the proletariat. The larger this general prosperity the less will workers seek recourse to exceptional means to ameliorate their condition."

"Proletarians have the same rights as citizens as the rich, consequently they have a right to the same interest on the part of the state. Governments should carefully observe their obligations in the distribution of justice. Absolute equity, however, is a chimera. Social hierarchies are based on natural principles. The state ought to see that all citizens are related to work as conscientiously observed and should oppose anything that might cause popular passions. Yielding to unhealthy excitement would provoke trouble and violence. Small wages often give rise to strikes disastrous not only to the workmen and their masters but to the general interests of commerce and public industry. Governments ought to prevent an explosion at these crises."

"The moral dignity which is equal among the poor and rich, exacts repose from work on certain days. The state ought to care for the workmen and not let them become the prey of speculators and usurers who are seeking to abuse their weakness in order to obtain excessive and dishonest profits. A man's work should go to such an extent that he is forced to succumb under an excess of corporal fatigue. Everybody's physical forces are limited and humanity forbids that they should be exceeded. Consequently expediency is shown in a certain limitation of death and the protection of children and girls."

"The pope attaches particular importance to working people's associations, and says that corporations useful in the past ought to be adapted to present needs. These associations, he adds, would better answer the ends for which they were formed if they were composed of both workmen and their masters, and their action ought to develop more and more."

The pope then expatiates on the advantages of liberty and the right of combination, so long as these associations do not present any inconveniences to public interests, but in suppressing associations the state ought to take precautions not to violate the rights of individuals and ought not to advance the exercise of public utility as a pretext to offend sound political principles. Unhappily it often occurs that these associations are made the puppets of wirepullers exploiting their poverty. It is important to create counter associations to withdraw workmen from these unjust oppressions. The pope greatly praises their endeavoring to better the condition of the proletariat, to establish bonds of mutual equity between workmen and their masters, to maintain the sentiment of reciprocal duties and to combat intemperance among workmen. His holiness says: "We are with great satisfaction, eager men uniting and working in common to advance their ideas; the efforts of others seeking favor by cooperation with working hours, which should be interrupted by a period of repose, varying according to conditions of time, place, public health and the nature of the work."

"The question of wages is particularly delicate. Justice exacts that an agreed salary should be paid. At the same time agreements entered into by workmen ought to be respected. The state should see that these reciprocal obligations are executed. An element of the question is that the workman ought to be able with his salary to provide the necessities of life. In all these questions it is essential that state representatives should not intervene inconsiderately. It will suffice to reserve examination of these points to the judgment of associations in order to safeguard the interests of both employers and employed. The tutelage and authority of the state ought to intervene only as much as general interests demand. A great social advantage lies in laws which have the sanction of public opinion. These are the best means to prevent opposition between extreme rich and extreme poverty, but it is also necessary that the properties shall not be overtaxed. The state commits an injustice in undue exactions from individuals. Institutions for aiding the poor and facilitating a conciliation between the various social classes are especially useful in containing ostracable results."

Following this idea the pope then particularly mentions associations for mutual succor and institutions for insurance in case of accidents, sickness, and genuine workmen's associations and bishops encouraging them, and finally rich Catholics acting as voluntary friends of proletarians, contributing with money to develop these associations, and says:

"In the presence of the efforts of so many generous minds we have not the right to despair of our times. Let the state protect the right of legitimate associations among citizens, but let it take care not to interfere with the internal order of life of any one. The real condition of life is that it proceed from internal movement. Exterior conditions ought only to facilitate pulsations having an internal origin. These associations ought to be administered by upright men who in crises and difficulties may fulfill the role of equitable arbitrators. The conclusion from all these complex questions is that universal cooperation is necessary and that everybody ought to help willingly under the auspices of faith and Christian morality."

THEIR DEMANDS.

Legislation Favored by the Trans-Mississippi Congress in Session at Denver.

DENVER, Col., May 23.—The report of the committee on resolutions of the trans-Mississippi congress was adopted Friday. A synopsis is as follows:

It recommends that congress pass the Bureau bill appropriating $100,000 for the building and maintenance of levees on the Mississippi river; demands wise governmental supervision of railroads; recommends the granting of liberal charters and subsidies to steamship lines under the American flag; favors the admission of New Mexico and Arizona into the union; asks congress to pass the Torrey bankruptcy law; to cede to the different states all the arid lands except mineral lands; to enact such legislation as will foster our mining interests; recommends more stringent naturalization laws; favors the immediate construction of the Hennepin canal and the immediate completion of the jetty at Galveston. Upon the silver question it asks that the congress of the United States be petitioned to repeal all laws which in their effect work disfavor upon it or in the least challenge the sovereignty of the silver dollar as an absolute measure of values, and to restore to silver the place given it by perfect money by the framers of our government. The congress also asks the president and congress to attempt to bring about an international recognition and adjustment of silver as money, or asks that a limited agreement be sought with the nations of the Latin union whereby the mints of those nations may again be opened for the coinage of silver. It also favors negotiations with the Spanish-American nations for a common currency for this continent south of Canada. A minority report on the silver clause simply demands the free and unlimited coinage of silver."

The regular order of business was taken up with a resolution deploring the enactment of a law by the forty-ninth congress prohibiting foreign capital from investing in real estate and mines. Adopted.

The hand of the Louisiana lottery combination was manifested in the defeat of resolutions calling for a constitutional amendment by which lotteries could be legalized in any state. The vote stood 9 to 26.

FAILURE AND SUICIDE.

The Hill Shoe Company, of Memphis, Tenn., Assigns, and President Hill Shoots Himself.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 23.—The Hill Shoe Company failed Thursday and William Vilas Hill, the president of the company, immediately thereafter committed suicide. The failure of the firm was directly due to the failure of the Lynn Davis Shoe Company, which owed the Hill Shoe Company between $300,000 and $400,000. President Hill received a telegram from the Lynn firm about 4 o'clock Thursday advising him to assign to protect himself. He gave orders that this be done and without a word left the store. He went directly to his home on Pontotoc street, reaching there about 6 o'clock. Climbing over the rear fence he entered the house by the back door and went direct to his room. Here he undressed and, taking a Winchester rifle from its position over the fireplace, went to the bathroom, where he shot himself. No member of Mr. Hill's family was at home, and the servant did not hear the shot. The body was found when called by a member of the family who had returned home for dinner. He was 32 years old, prominent in social circles, and a nephew of ex-Postmaster General Vilas. The liabilities of the company are about $400,000 and the assets $200,000, the creditors principally eastern parties.

The Jackson-Corbett Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—Referee San Corbett's decision in the Jackson-Corbett fight was that the mill was "no contest." Technically this is not a draw. It is, in effect, that the club has seen no battle and is in no worse, therefore, indebted to the pugilists for their night's work. All the bets on the final result of the fight are off.

The directors of the California Athletic club met Friday evening and decided to give Corbett and Jackson $2,500 each for their exhibition Thursday night and to offer the men a purse of $7,500 to fight before the club again.

Rudini's Advice.

ROME, May 23.—Italian emigrants to America are returning home in such numbers as to alarm the government in view of the fact that nearly every one of those who arrive is entirely destitute. Prime Minister Rudini has instructed the Italian consuls to persuade their country people who wish to return home that it would be better for them to go elsewhere in America than to come back in a destitute condition, as they will find their former places filled and the labor market frightfully overstocked.

Foreign View of the New Party.

LONDON, May 23.—The newspapers here take sufficient interest in the Cincinnati convention to comment upon it. In a serious movement of the people against the intolerable hardships of the tariff and against other abuses. Some even express the belief that it will subvert the older parties. The alien ownership plank of the Cincinnati platform is regarded as pernicious because it repels capital from the country.

BLAINE'S MIND.

Dental of Sensational Reports of the Secretary's Mental Collapse.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Much interest and indignation have been expressed here over the sensational stories concerning Secretary Blaine's alleged mental collapse. The statements have been made with such great particularity that they are given every appearance of authenticity. The New York Herald asserts that Mr. Blaine flashes and sparkles for fifteen or twenty minutes and then of a sudden becomes silent, moody and hypochondriac. It claims that the diagnosis is uniform and universal, that Mr. Blaine's intellect has passed into the stage wherein it flashes and then dies away, till he is left after a long interval of repose, but it never more burns with steadiness. Like a victim of narcotics, he is said to exhibit nothing between nervous impetuosity and complete mental lassitude. The assertion is made that President Harrison and the officials and diplomats who are in intimate association with Secretary Blaine were secretly and sadly conscious that the secretary of state had reached the point of imbecility. In order to get at the real facts a reporter called upon several gentlemen who are commonly accepted as Mr. Blaine's most intimate friends and who for this reason know the real condition of his mental faculties. They were emphatic in declaring that Mr. Blaine's mental faculties were never stronger or brighter than to-day and there is not the slightest weakening in his intellectual grasp.

NOT GUILTY.

The Kansas Senate Falls to Impach Judge Botkin on the House Charges.

TORPEA, Kan., May 23.—The Kansas senate, sitting as a court of impeachment, after a trial and lasting since April 20, Friday afternoon returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Theodosius Botkin, judge of the Thirty-second district. Judge Botkin was arraigned on ten articles by the house of representatives, charging him with drunkenness, blasphemy, tyranny and oppression in office, and of corruption. On the charges of oppression and corruption there were eighteen votes for conviction, on that of blasphemy there were four, and of being a habitual user of intoxicating liquor eight senators voted guilty. It required twenty-seven votes to convict.

Michigan Legislative Doings.

LANSING, Mich., May 23.—The house spent the greater portion of Friday in discussing the Fildew bill to prohibit for a term ten hours' labor on street car lines, and failed on third reading by a vote of 42 to 36. The vote was reconsidered and bill tabled. Bills were passed adding four companies to the military forces of the state; for transferring the remains of Gov. Stevens T. Mason from New York state and reintering them in the capital grounds here. The senate passed a bill appropriating $80,700 for the current expenses of the industrial home for girls in 1891-2.

Prof. Dana concludes that during the glacial period Long Island Sound, instead of being as it now is, a arm of the ocean twenty miles wide, was for the greater part of its length a narrow channel serving as a common trunk for many Connecticut streams and a few from Long Island. In these circumstances the supply of fresh water for the Sound river would have been so great that salt water would have barely passed the entrance of the Sound.

Prof. Dana concludes that during the glacial period Long Island Sound, instead of being as it now is, a arm of the ocean twenty miles wide, was for the greater part of its length a narrow channel serving as a common trunk for many Connecticut streams and a few from Long Island. In these circumstances the supply of fresh water for the Sound river would have been so great that salt water would have barely passed the entrance of the Sound.

Only Once.

It was a pitiful mistake.
 An error sad and grim;
 I waited for the railway train;
 The light was low and dim.

It came at last, and from the car
 There stepped a dainty dame,
 And looking up and down the place
 She straight upon me came.

"Oh, Jack!" she cried, "Oh, dear old Jack!"
 And kissed me as she spoke;
 Then, looking again, and frightened cried,
 "Oh, what a mistake!"

I said, "Forgive me, maiden fair,
 That I am not your Jack,
 And as regards the kiss you gave,
 I'll straightway give it back."

And since that night I have often stood
 On the platform lighted dim,
 But only once in a man's whole life
 Do such things come to him.

—Boston Courier.

There is no death! The dust we tread
 Shall change beneath the summer showers
 To golden grain or mellowed fruit,
 Or rainbow tinted flowers.

The granite rocks disorganize,
 And feed the hungry moss they bear;
 The forest leaves drink daily life
 From out the vernal air.

There is no death! The leaves may fall,
 And flowers may fade and pass away;
 They only wait through wintry hours
 The coming of the May.

There is no death! An angel form
 Walks over the earth with silent tread;
 He bears our best loved dead away;
 And then we call them "dead."

He leaves our hearts all desolate;
 He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers;
 Transplanted into bliss, they now
 Adorn immortal bowers.

The birdlike voice, whose joyous tones
 Made glad these scenes of sin and strife,
 Sings now an everlasting song
 Around the tree of life.

Where'er he sees a smile too bright,
 Or heart too pure for taint and vice,
 He bends o'er that world of light,
 To dwell in Paradise.

Born unto that undying life,
 They leave us but to come again;
 With joy we welcome them the same—
 Except their sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen,
 The dear immortal spirits stand;
 For all the boundless universe
 Is life—there are no dead.

—J. L. McCreery.

What Might Be Done.
 What might be done if men were wise—
 What glorious deeds, my suffering brother,
 Would they unite.

In love and right,
 And cease their scorn of one another.
 Oppression's heart might be imbued
 With kindling drops of loving kindness,
 And knowledge pour
 From shore to shore,
 Light on the eyes of mental blindness.

All slavery, warfare, lies and wrongs;
 All vice and crime might die together;
 And wine and corn,
 To each man born,
 Be free as warmth in summer weather.

The meanest wretch that ever trod,
 The deepest sunk in guilt and sorrow,
 Might stand erect
 In self respect,
 And share the teeming world tomorrow.

What might be done? This might be done:
 And more than this, my suffering brother—
 More than the tongue
 Ever said or sung
 If men were wise and loved each other.

—Charles Mackay.

Memory Is Possession.
 They are poor
 Who have lost nothing; they are poorer far
 Who, losing, have forgotten; they most poor
 Of all who lose and wish they might forget.

For life is one, and in its warp and woof
 There runs a thread of gold that glitters fair,
 And sometimes in the pattern shows most sweet
 Where there are some sordid colors. It is true
 That we have wept. But oh! this thread of gold

We would not have it tangle; let us turn
 Off and look back upon the wondrous web,
 And when it's done sometimes we shall know
 That memory is possession.

—Jean Ingelow.

A Song.
 A song for the girl I love—
 God love her!
 A song for the eyes of tender shine,
 And the fragrant mouth that melts on mine,
 The shimmering tresses unrolled
 That clasp her neck with tender fold,
 The blossom mouth and the dainty chin,
 And the little dimples out and in—
 The girl I love!

God love her!
 A song for the girl I loved—
 God love her!
 A song for the eyes of faded light,
 And the cheek whose red rose waned to white;
 The quiet brow with sorrow and gloom,
 And the dark hair drooped in a long, deep dream;
 The hands crossed for their churchyard rest,
 And the lilies dead on her sweet dead breast.
 The girl I loved—
 God love her!

—Frederick Langbridge.

"Has Been."
 That melancholy phrase, "It might have been,"
 However sad, doth its heart enfold
 A hidden germ of promise; for I hold
 Whatever might have been shall be. Though in
 Some other realm and life the soul must win
 The goal that erst was possible. But could
 And cruel as the sound of frozen mold
 Dropped on a coffin, are words "has been,"
 "She has been beautiful," "He has been great."

"Rome has been powerful," we sigh and say.
 It is the pitying crust we toss decay.
 The dirge we breathe o'er some degenerate
 state.
 An epitaph for Fame's unburied dead.
 God pity those who live to hear it said!
 —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Youth.
 We would not turn back the dial,
 Nor live over the past again;
 We would not the path re-travel,
 Nor batten the "name" for the "then."
 Yet, oh, for the bounding pulses,
 And the strength to do and dare,
 When life was a grand endeavor,
 And work clasped hands with prayer!
 —Julia C. K. Dorr.

Sin.
 I hold
 Those lives far nobler that contend and win
 The cross, hard light with beautiful, fierce sin,
 Than those who go untrampled to their graves,
 Deeming the ignorance that haply saves
 Their souls, some splendid wisdom of their own.
 —Constance Fenimore Woolson.

Desolation.
 By the weed strewn, brown, desolate reaches,
 Lonely and half broken hearted,
 We met and we parted.
 By the weed strewn, brown, desolate reaches,
 —William W. Martin.

Joy Cometh in the Morning.
 I had a sorrow, and I wept salt tears
 One winter night, and heavy beat the rain;
 At dawn came frost, and on my window pane
 Each drop like fairy lacework now appears.

So shall my grief perchance become a pleasure
 Yes, tears may be as jewels hearts would keep.
 For in another life we'll wake from sleep,
 And light shall sparkle from our new found treasure.

—Beatrice L. Tollenmacher.

ILLINOIS.

The Legislature indorses Representative Springer's Candidacy for the Speakership of the Next Congress—Other Doings.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 23.—Both houses of the legislature passed a resolution recommending Congressman Springer for speaker of the national house of representatives. The rules had to be suspended in the senate in order to pass the resolution, as Senator Campbell, much to the chagrin of his democratic party friends, insisted on objecting to giving unanimous consent.

The senate killed the bill compelling all insurance companies to make their policies non-forfeitable after six months. Senator Berry called up the text book bill and the compulsory education bill of the republican majority. The first was read a second time and both were made a special order for next Wednesday. Adjourned to 3 p. m. Monday.

The house passed Mr. Arnold's anti-trust store bill. The measure had already passed the senate and now gone to the governor, who will doubtless approve it. It was substituted in the house for Mr. Forsythe's bill in order chiefly that delay might be avoided. One hundred votes were cast in favor of the measure, and not one against it. It becomes a law July 1. It compels the payment of employees' wages in lawful money, prohibits the truck store system and prevents deductions from wages except for money actually advanced. The house defeated Dr. Moore's woman-suffrage bill by a vote of 50 to 50. A notice of a motion to reconsider was entered. The bill providing for the burial at county expense of deceased indigent or friendless union soldiers and sailors was passed by a large vote. It provides that the expense of such a burial shall not exceed $35, and that the grave shall be marked by an appropriate headstone.

LECTURE ON DYSPESIA.

THE RANK OF MODERN CIVILIZATION.
 AN INSIDIOUS ENEMY TO MANKIND—VARIETIES EXPLAINED—CURES DISCUSSED.

By Dr. S. B. HARTMAN.

Dyspepsia is a term that is used to cover all chronic diseases of the digestive system which produces either painful, irregular or imperfect digestion of the food. While each case presents a slightly different history and combination of symptoms, yet the cause of dyspepsia can be traced to three sources. First, chronic gastritis (gastric dyspepsia); second, weakness of the stomach (atonic dyspepsia); third, sluggishness of the liver, pancreas and glands of the bowels (reflex dyspepsia). Gastric dyspepsia is due to chronic inflammation of the stomach, and sometimes the duodenum.

For this condition I find Pe-runa to be an admirable remedy. In all cases it brings prompt relief to the painful symptoms, and a large per cent. of the cases it makes a permanent cure.

In the chronic variety of dyspepsia there is not usually much pain, but a feeling of great weight, and sometimes faintness, after each meal, followed by sour eructations of gas.

I believe Pe-runa to be well-nigh invincible in these cases. In my large practice and correspondence I have yet to learn of a single case of atonic dyspepsia which has not either been greatly benefited or cured by Pe-runa.

Reflex dyspepsia is due to derangement of organs intimately connected with digestion—either the liver, pancreas or bowels. After many years of experience and study of the various liver medicines and laxatives, I fortunately hit upon the compound named Man-a-lin. It restores the regular action of the bowels; and gradually removes permanently every trace of the dyspeptic symptoms. Taken in doses suited to the severity of each particular case, it produces a healthy action of the bowels, without any physicking effect whatever, and it will rarely, if ever, fail to cure the worst case.

In conclusion, it often happens that two or even three of the varieties of dyspepsia above described affect a person at one time; in which case Pe-runa and Man-a-lin should be taken at the same time, according to the directions on the labels of the bottles.

For further particulars as to the treatment and cause of dyspepsia, send for medical pamphlet, "The Family Physician" No. 3. Sent free by any address by The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio.

ASHARON WAR

A Lutheran Pastor Threatened With White-Cap Vengeance.

HE BLAMES A YOUNG SCHOOL GIRL.

The Church Council Would Like His Resignation.

BUT HE WANTS HIS SALARY FIRST.

In Consequence There is a Decided Hitch which is Likely to Lead to a Trial of Strength at the Sunday Session.

Full Details of The Case.

SHARON, May 23.—[Special.—The breach between Sharon Lutherans and their pastor, Rev. I. J. Delo has widened until there seems no recourse but a trial of strength.

Threats of White Cap justice have been made against the pastor in consequence of his actions, and yesterday a letter was made public in which he blames Miss Nina Witter, a young girl formerly a member of his family, for the threats, and asks her to publicly answer three questions:

First—When were you at our house that you were not treated like a lady?

Second—When and where did any of my family treat you otherwise than with due respect?

Third—From whence and from whom have you received the inspiration to make those malignant threats against me which you are so free in making?

Mr. Delo declares that if any personal violence should be done him by White Caps he will hold her responsible.

Miss Witter publishes an answer in which she styles her pastor's letter as an "outrage on a weak, fatherless, school girl."

The church council have on two occasions demanded the pastor's resignation. He refuses to step out, however, until his salary is paid him.

To-morrow night the matter will be finally settled, as a call has been made by the council. This church for a meeting of the members to vote on the proposition to dismiss the pastor.

MONEY FOR REV. MR. MILLS.

A Statement As to the Contributions For His Benefit.

In order that the matter of the alleged compensation, to be made to the evangelist, Mr. Mills and his associate, Professor Greenwood, may be clearly understood, and to correct a false impression which seems to exist in regard thereto, it is thought best to make a plain statement of the facts in the case.

The only arrangement as to money matters made by Mr. Mills was, that a fund sufficient to pay the necessary local incidental expenses of the meetings, should be raised and in hand before the meetings began. Accordingly a finance committee of five persons, one from each of the five churches represented, was appointed to take that matter in hand and a fund for that purpose was secured.

Mr. Mills expressly stipulated that no money should be raised by subscription or collection for himself or his associate, distinctly stating that he could not consent to receive any salary or compensation for services, except such free will offerings as individuals might desire to make during the meetings. This statement is due to Mr. Mills and Professor Greenwood, whose evangelical work is not influenced by dollars and cents, and whose time and ability are consecrated wholly to the spiritual good of men.

Unveiling of Grant's Statue.

The statue of the late General U. S. Grant will be unveiled at Galena, Illinois, on June 3, with imposing ceremonies. The interest of the event will be added to by the presence of the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, as orator of the occasion, and Mrs. Grant is also expected to attend.

To accommodate those who desire to participate in the ceremonies, the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company will on June 2 and 3, sell excursion tickets, good to return until June 4, inclusive, at one-half regular rate, one fare for the round trip. For further information regarding rates, etc., apply to agents Chicago & Northwestern Railway.

Attention G. A. R.

GENERAL ORDER No. 2. The members of W. H. Sargent Post G. A. R. will attend service at Christ church tomorrow morning at half past ten. All comrades are expected to be present. The Relief corps, and any visiting comrades or old soldiers are invited to attend with the Post. Comrades will leave Post hall at 10:15 sharp. By order of E. B. HEIMSTREET, Commander. Attest: M. McDONALD, Adjutant.

DIPHTHERIA IN THE SECOND WARD.

Ida Griffith, of Evansville, Taken Sick While on a Visit.

Another case of diphtheria has been reported at this time in the home of Frank Dewey, 234 North Bluff street, the victim being Miss Ida Griffith, of Evansville, who came to the city last Monday to visit her aunt, Mrs. Dewey. She was taken sick yesterday, the family physician was summoned, and her ailment was pronounced diphtheria.

Diphtheria on Lincoln Street.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freeman was suddenly darkened by the death angel this morning, the victim being their little three year old daughter. A week ago the little girl was taken with measles, afterwards with diphtheria the disease terminating fatally at two o'clock this morning. There are two other small children in the family, but as yet they show no symptoms of either disease. Little Lizzie was buried in Oak Hill cemetery at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and private funeral services being conducted at the home by Rev. G. Kemplein of St. John's church.

DEATH CAUSED BY GRIP.

Miss Tessie Murty Passes Away At Her First Ward Home.

Miss Tessie Murty died at 5:30 o'clock this morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murty, corner of Pine and Center streets. She was attacked with grip about two weeks ago, which finally developed into rheumatism. She was a young woman twenty-one years of age and had many friends in the city who will sincerely regret her early death. The funeral will be held from St. Patrick's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

CAUGHT A JANESVILLE FORGER.

J. R. Barrett, Who Claims This City as His Home, Arrested.

A fellow giving the name of J. R. Barrett, Janesville, Wisconsin, was arrested at Dubuque, Iowa, for passing fraudulent checks on dealers. They were made payable to G. R. Grovesner, a prominent merchant, and signed Stacy, Brown & Co., a fictitious signature. He passed a number of them, all drawn for $7.50, on clerks left in charge of stores at supper time. He would buy a cigar or something and receive the change. He was finally run down in a saloon.

MANY FINE CAMPS.

They Can be Found Almost Anywhere on Rock River.

NO NEED OF HIGH PRICED RESORTS.

Bower City People Can Take Their Summer Outing Without Leaving Janesville, and at a Very Small Cost—Some of the Locations Described.

What earthly possession has a camper, that he would not give at this season of the year for a night's sleep under the old grass stained tent?

What camper would eat a Palmer House dinner when he could get a rasher of bacon of his own cooking, and a cup of coffee of his own brewing?

Then the first day in camp! The tent is put up, the ropes adjusted and everything made snug for a season of rest. Then, and not until then, is the camper free. Nobody has a word to say about what he shall do or what he shall not do.

No harsh sounding bell vigorously shaken by a muscular cook, awakes him in the morning. These barbarous inventions are unnecessary. The singing of birds, the crowing of the cocks at the distant farm houses, the sighing of breezes through the trees, are the campers' alarm clock, and he rises with the sun and is at peace with all mankind.

Stories of the Camp.

Then what memories float through his head as he arranges his camp. Each spot on the tent, and each piece of gear, has a story, and then when he takes out the old fish pole which has stood in the corner wrapped in its lead colored cotton case all winter. Critically he examines it. There are some guides gone; but they are soon repaired and the rod is ready for business.

When night comes a big camp fire is kindled, the party take their seats around it, soon meet in a banjo strings twang, and the gentle breezes carry the sound far down the river. Someone starts a song and the entire company join in on the chorus; stories are told, pipes are smoked out and the stillness is only broken by the chirping of crickets and the croaking of bull frogs. The tent is tied up and the tired camper sleeps the sleep of the just "good as Isaac Walton" said "and anybody except very honest people."

These joys Janesville has.

These are some of the joys of camp life, but pen is inadequate to describe them. By journeying up the river a mile or two the dream can be realized and the tired mortal can test the matter for himself.

There is no reason why people should say "I cannot afford to take an outing." In former years people thought that to go camping meant to go to some high priced resort. It remained for a few boys to pitch their tent on Rock river's banks, and now all is changed. The shade of the magnificent elms and oaks is as grateful; the grass is as green, the oxygen is as pure and invigorating on the banks of the beautiful Rock as they are on the one-dollar-a-day resorts, and Janesville people appreciate the fact.

Dozens, yes scores of as pleasant spots as can be found in the United States can be found up the river.

Around Barker's Camp.

Some years ago one lone tent stood at the edge of the river at Barker's farm, two and one-half miles from the city. Last year a dozen canvas houses as well as two cottages were erected on the same spot. This is the nearest camping ground to the city, and it is a beautiful location. The ground is covered with second growth oak and slants to the river with a gentle slope. Next to the river is a strip of spongy ground, and by digging a hole and setting a barrel down cold sparkling water is to be had in abundance. Halfway over to Crystal Springs a clear creek arises from half a dozen bubbling springs and finds its way to the river. No refrigerator ever kept butter harder or milk sweeter than this creek does when the butter and milk cans are submerged. "Barker's" is a handsome spot, and by the payment of a very reasonable sum a tent can remain all summer. Milk and other supplies can be obtained from farm houses or of Captain Alex Buchholz, at Crystal Springs. Captain Buchholz and his accommodating wife are always ready to help campers in any way possible. "Barker's" is a favorite resort of business men. The "Enterprise" comes down town at 7 o'clock in the morning and returns at 6 o'clock in the evening. By this arrangement business men can taste the joys of camping without neglecting or leaving their stores.

Burr Springs a Favorite.

Another popular and pleasant resort is Burr Springs, which will be conducted this season by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burr. This is also a convenient stopping place for business men. The "Mayflower" makes regular trips and will bring business men down town at 7 o'clock and return them in the evening. A dozen cottages have been built by Mr. Burr which will be rented this season. There are also a number of private cottages as well as delightful spots for tents. Burr's Springs is splendidly located. The ground is as level as a floor and runs clear to the river bank where it ends abruptly. The spring water is unexcelled and is also located on the grounds where parties can be given. Mr. Burr's charges are very reasonable, and to camp at Burr's Springs means a cheap outing and twenty-four hours of unalloyed pleasure.

Around Anderson's Bay.

Pleasantly situated in the big bend of the river about Burr's springs is "Anderson's" so called because it is owned by Mr. Anderson at whose comfortable farm house many parties can be secured. Here is an ideal spot for a small camp. The bank is at least fifteen feet high and a picturesque hollow has been washed out by spring floods. Timbered with second growth oak and carpeted by green turf, this is indeed a delightful spot. There is only room for one tent on the bluff however, and for a small party it is a fine location. It is near town but removed from the curious crowds that throng the resorts. It has many advantages. Water can be secured near by from a spring which bubbles out of the bank at the edge of the river. Half an hour's work raking up leaves and cutting a path to the spring will make "Anderson's" a charming resort.

HEED NOT THE LAWS

Quarantine Regulations Disregarded in Janesville.

THE OFFICERS ARE POWERLESS.

They Insist, However, That There is Little Fear of the Spread of The Diseases by Exposed Persons who Pass Along the Street by.

Are quarantine regulations meant to be enforced?

This is the question a good many persons have asked in the last two or three days. There has been much complaint over the way in which the laws have been disregarded. Some insist that the regulations are violated with impunity; that in many instances no attention whatever is paid to the orders of the health department, and that people who have been exposed to scarlet fever and diphtheria have been allowed to walk the streets without molestation, the quarantine in many cases being confined to the placing of a card at the doorway.

A Gazette reporter interviewed the mayor and health officer in relation to quarantine restrictions and the efforts of the authorities to enforce the law.

"There is need of more stringent laws to meet certain cases," said Mayor St. John. "The health officer is now acting more under provision of the common law, but even then there are few flagrant violations. I do not think there is much danger of spreading diphtheria by this time, yet insisted that all people should willingly obey the laws of the health department, especially when ordered by the health officer."

"I am doing all I can to keep these people quarantined," said Health Officer Robinson. "That there are some violations I have no doubt, I cannot stand guard at a man's door day and night, and do not believe the people passing along the street, not nearly as much as there is in confining him in a closed house. Fresh air is a good disinfectant, and ought to be applied in all cases. It is somewhat different with scarlet fever cases, and parties having been exposed ought not to be allowed quite so much liberty."
